Q. 3. Answer the following questions. (10)

a) Write the passage in precise form

The criminal justice administration in any society is after all a relay race. The lawmakers guarantee the basic security of person to the citizen. The police apprehends and brings the law-violator to book. The Bar helps the free citizen to preserve his freedom and the bench imparts justice by inflicting punishment on the guilty and protection to the innocent. The prisons house the criminals and strive to reform and rehabilitate them. If one partner in the race is sluggish or non-co-operative the entire system is bound to collapse. As always the failures of the organismic system will be attributed to segmental break-downs but this is no gratification to say that police organisation is better than prison organisation or judiciary is more honest than the police in India. The totality of the administrative organism has developed social change that the maladies have to be diagnosed and prescriptions attempted. Most of the maladies of the criminal justice administration in India primarily originate from the accusational philosophy of justice which the institutional milieu of a developing society can ill-afford in the present context of democracy. The Constitution guarantees the fundamental rights, dignity of the individual, and independence and separation of judiciary from the executive but leaves police, prisons and penology to the policies and predicaments of democratic politics.

b) Read the following passage and translate in Marathi/Hindi.

Dr. APJ Abdul Kalam is a famous name in the whole world. He is counted among the greatest scientists of the 21st century. Even more, he becomes the 11th president of India and served his country. He was the most valued person of the country as his contribution as a scientist and as a president is beyond compare. Apart from that, his contribution to the ISRO (Indian Space Research Organization) is remarkable. He headed many projects that contributed to the society also he was the one who helped in the development of Agni and Prithvi missiles. For his involvement in the Nuclear power in India, he was known as "Missile Man of India". And due to his contribution to the country, the government awarded him with the highest civilian award.

Law, legal education and development have become interrelated concepts in modern developing societies, which are struggling to develop into social welfare states and are seeking to ameliorate the socio-economic condition of the people by peaceful means. It is crucial function of legal education to produce lawyers with a social vision in a developing country. Today, Law is viewed not merely as an instrument of social control, but also as an instrument of social change. Lawyers have been characterized as social engineers. As liberal education, legal education may serve the society by imparting to law students general and cultural education making them good law-abiding citizens. Such education will instill into the students the significance and relevance of democratic culture.
